Excerpt from The Philosophy of Art in America, a Dissertation Upon Vital Topics of the Day: Perhaps of All Time It has been said: He is a poor cannot talk about his trade - philosophically, of course ! for the great work is not to pull down, but to build up, as in this, humanity finds exceeding great and pure joy. Goethe exclaims, moreover: For eternal truths and lasting emotions one should go to the great writers of the past - true workers in the field Of literary art, all of them, - Who have outlived the changes of taste and time! Now as poet and sage combined in one, commend us to Solomon himself, not only the wisest of men, but ever evincing a most remarkable taste and fondest liking for the beautiful in Nature and in Art. For what can be more truly aesthetic, and certainly giving a leading and invaluable idea in decorative art - to say nothing of a highly appreciated suggestion to a landscape painter - than is to be found in the full significance of his familiar but imperishable proverb, A word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in pictures of Silver?
